Magix Music Maker is one of the most used programs of its kind.Q: Go: not returning any error? func checkResponse() ([]byte, error) { http.ListenAndServe("0.0.0.0:8080", nil) return []byte(fmt.Sprintf("%s", []string{"wibble", "wobble"})), nil } Why is there no error? What can I do to fix it? A: Your HTTP request never fails. The HTTP server simply doesn't deliver the response. This is why you are not capturing an error (checkResponse is a function, not a point of execution). You need to deliver an error to the http server (or at least control flow back to the top of the function), for example: Once the http server is listening, return an error indicating it failed to start up. For example, a common error is when the configuration port is already in use by another tool/program. HTTP server checks the error and then drops out of the function to the top.
