"Greetings, adventurers. We are PlatinumGames, which is the development team behind the action RPG sequel Tarnished Prince. The main theme of the game is the quest to become an Elden Lord and the rise in power. You may be surprised by the premise, but please look forward to the twists and turns you will encounter during your journey. If you have not had the chance to play Tarnished Prince yet, please give it a try. As you play the game, you can increase your potential as an Elden Lord. The game is filled with many unique situations, as well as an adventure that will appeal to players of all different types. We hope you enjoy this experience, and we hope you will support Tarnished Prince. Thank you." ABOUT TEKKEN 7 EXWANTUS "Hello all, Good news! Tekken 7 EXWANTUS is now available on Steam! We are now making our way into the Tekken world full of attention to details. We want to bring a fun adventure full of surprising twists and exciting scenarios to your hands. We hope you enjoy your time playing the game. Best wishes, Gilliam Holdings"Murdered Pakistani doctor Aafia Siddiqui was 'suicidal': Police The mother of a US soldier killed in Afghanistan's Wardak Province in 2010 has reportedly met with Aafia Siddiqui in an Italian prison, a day after the convicted al-Qaeda conspirator's mother claimed the jailed doctor was "suicidal." Jessica O'Donnell said she met with Aafia on March 17, one day before she was due to be released, according to a report in The New York Post. She said she "never saw her daughter's face" in a Bangladesh prison, but did meet Aafia's father, who told her that his daughter was "not suicidal" and was "very strong," according to the report. "I could see she needed treatment," O'Donnell said, explaining that her daughter, who was held in US custody for two years after a tip from Pakistan — a former ward of a US-based charity — led to her execution of a US soldier, had been "brainwashed." Meanwhile, the mother of a US soldier killed in Afghanistan's Wardak Province in 2010 has reportedly

Vaccination against rabies in prairie dogs (Cynomys mexicanus) with a single dose of a street rabies vaccine. Rabies is enzootic in prairie dogs in western Texas. To induce immunity in prairie dogs, a vaccine containing the following rabies virus glycoprotein genes was used: N, P, M and L (laboratory) strains of the rabies virus. Prairie dogs were vaccinated with a single intramuscular injection containing 6 x 10(5) CID50 (50% infectious dose) and antibody titers were examined at two intervals (1.5 and 6 months). Antibody titers in the immunized animals were significantly higher than those of the control animals at both time intervals. The data indicate that a single dose of vaccine is sufficient for inducing protective immunity in prairie dogs.'There is no such person as Bohannon, Sawyer' Described as a man of mystery, with a past shrouded in legend, the most mysterious character in True Detective is starting to get a little more complicated. According to HBO, David Milch and Nic Pizzolatto's "True Detective" will eschew the three lead characters from the pilot: Rust Cohle, Marty Hart and Angela Valdez. Instead, the show will follow three different detectives from the story: Ray Velcoro, Frank Semyon and Paul Woodrugh. And their investigation into the death of the brutal serial killer Matthew "Rust" Cohle will take them across the Southwest: Bakersfield, Ventura and San Bernardino counties. HBO's official description of the show, however, is far more verbose: "City of Fire Season 2 explores the line between life and death, good and evil, when the occult meets modern America. Follow three detectives in Louisiana, Arizona and Southern California as they pursue a pattern of occult murders that mirrors the twists and turns of the century-old mystery of the Zodiac killer." The above description won't keep Dan Casey from claiming that this is "probably the worst premise for a series to
